

I am a XM radio subscriber and I think that they should basically be able to do whatever they want for their subscribers. I pay for this service and so I should get what I pay for. This happens to include traffic and weather. The FCC has no business interfering with this legitimate business providing a service to their subscribers.